Recognition of the Zahn Family for the Huntington County Honors Class of 2019

On Oct. 26th, the William and Marjorie Zahn Family was inducted into the Business and Professional Huntington County Honors class of 2019.

This award highlights both the well-known and those who are less familiar. Candidates must have made a lasting contribution to the betterment of Huntington County or brought recognition to the community through their actions or achievements. The Zahn's have been leaders whose efforts have contributed to economic development.

First Federal Savings Bank can trace its corporate lineage back more than a century. But the First Federal that people are familiar with began 62 years ago, when a Huntington businessman, William Zahn, joined the board of directors of People's Savings and Loan.

The board appointment led to Zahn becoming a bank employee. He rose quickly to become a vice president and, in 1963, was named its president. Three years later, the institution's name was changed to First Federal Savings and Loan, now First Federal Savings Bank.

William Zahn retired from First Federal in 1990, but his legacy of family leadership continues at the institution.

His son, Stephen E. Zahn, joined the bank in 1966 and became its president and chief operating officer in 1980. The third generation of Zahn family leadership at First Federal arrived when Stephen Zahn's son Michael joined the business in 1996. He succeeded his father as president and in 2011, became the bank's CEO.

2019 Teller of the Year

First Federal Savings Bank announces Lisa Jaynes as the 2019 Teller of the Year. She was recognized at the First Federal Christmas Party, held on December 4th. Lisa joined the First Federal team in June of 2010 and works at the South Huntington Office. Teller of the Year is awarded based on accuracy, hard work, customer service, dedication, number of transactions and job knowledge.
